From December 1938,
the ^{war} concern of scientists

Thus, unless "necessary" to defeat Hitler (unlikely after early '42, Stalingrad), the Reichstag have thought of US secret NFO policy and effort to ban further steel, tin, prod., etc., as soon as it became clear that Germany would not have a Bomb

This was clearly (mid- or) late 1944.
(UK was convinced
earlier). (And there was any prior thought

With?

Was there any concern about Allied "abuse"?

(Before Feb '42 (or somewhat later) it was not obvious that the Allies would use
e.g., or systematic, terror bombing against cities.
But by mid- or late '42,
this was perceptible;
certainly no later than Hamburg or Cologne (mid-43: MP under way).

There should have been a position to use against Japan (as a strong NNWS) - esp.
after Midway (early '42?)
From start of MP

he would ⁽²⁾ have done so).

- Ethical Hyp:

A small category
of acts/consequences
should be fast.

Understood as "absolute moral"; not to be caused directly or indirectly (without active resistance, exposure, + self-sacrifice) under any circumstances.

This should be kept narrow (as for death punishment, if not abolished) (today's discussion of death sentence, CNN)

e.g. - mass slayings
of civilians.

- serial murder

(things people who do this tend to be Nazis, beyond reach of ethical agreement or deterrence)

NOT: - telling a secret
- breaking a promise
to a boss, org.
- disobeying
- letting down / having power of teacher, Pres., Eugene

For: more-absolute?
hsts decision should not have been made by one man or small group in secret -
like all our progress)
